Working in these walls of Time . . .
Our todays and yesterdays
Are the blocks with which we build.
Henry Wadsworth Longfellow

As students, we must start now to build a firm foundation on which we can base our tomorrows; to make our portion of these walls distinct; so that they may stand erect forever, and not be lost in the endless maze of time.

School Personnel Maintain Healthy Environment

These students, under the direction of Miss Ella Riedel, help to keep the cafeteria running smoothly and efficiently.

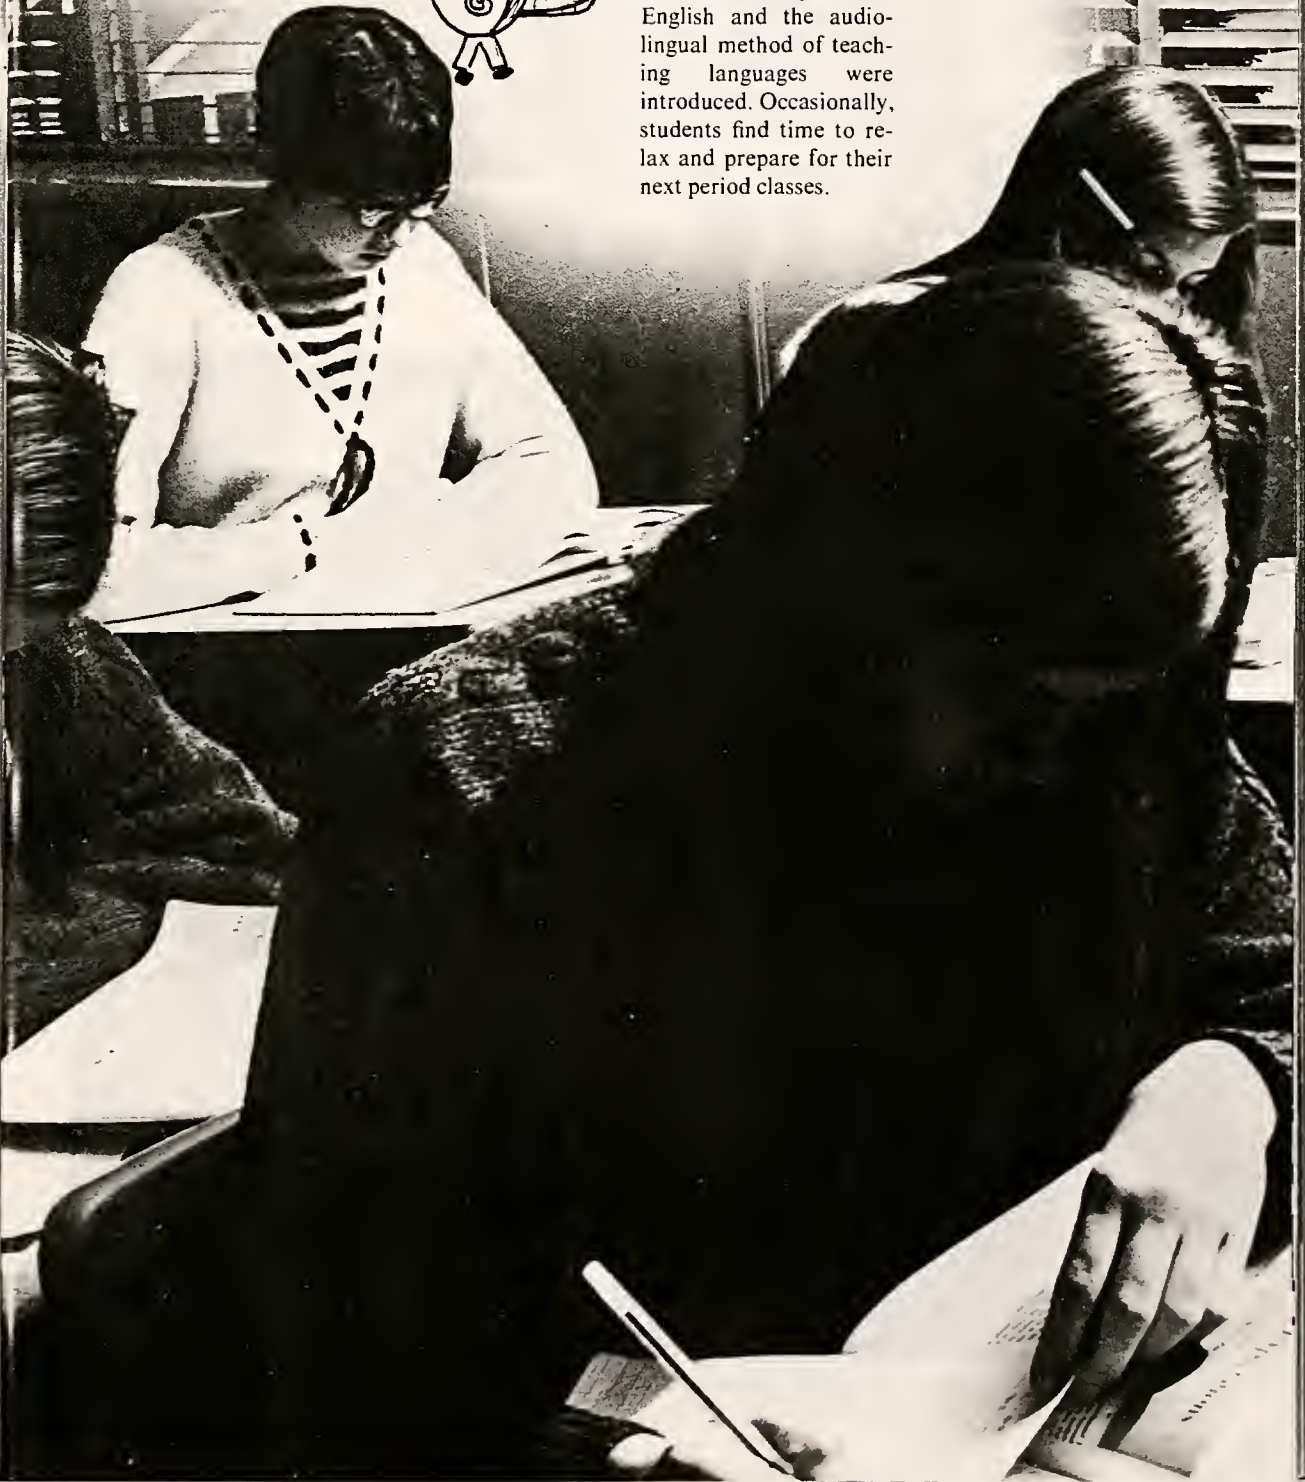

The cafeteria staff works together to prepare well-balanced hot lunches for the students and faculty. These ladies are Mrs. Ella Riedel, manager, Violet Pease, Ellen Fagan, Ann Matthias, Isabelle Miller, Ina Dickerson, and Louise Kuhn.

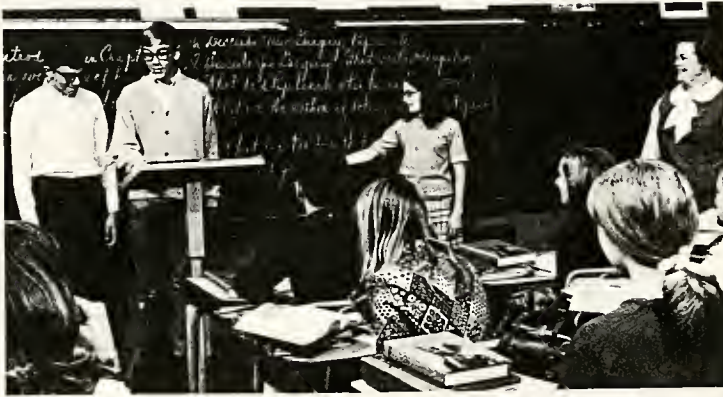

ACADEMICS

Students have a varied academic life at Harrison Hill. Often new teaching methods are introduced. This year new English and the audio-lingual method of teaching languages were introduced. Occasionally, students find time to relax and prepare for their next period classes.

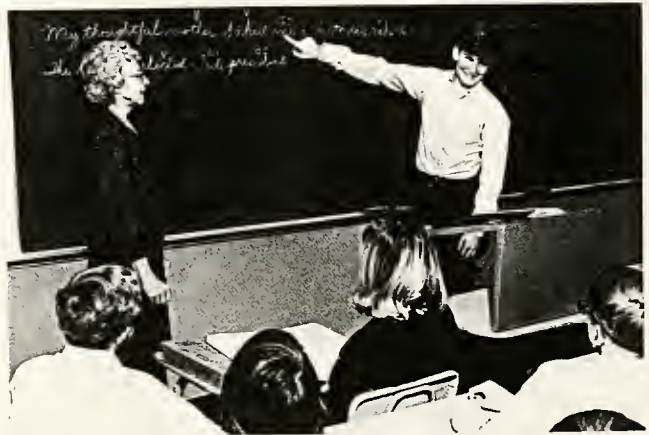

New Structural English Program Introduced

Mrs. Ann Gargett's ninth grade English class studies the novel, Great Expectations. Students leading the discussion are Michael Henry, James Krzyminski, and Debra Tudor.

Kurtis Vogel, with the assistance of Miss Audrey Hochstetler, points out the indirect object of the sentence.

Seventh graders Ronald Goltz, Carleton Keck, and Rinn Brooks write their class work on the blackboard to explain it to Mr. Donald Reynolds in Language Arts class.

A new English program based on structural grammar was introduced in the Fort Wayne junior high schools this year. All students learned basic sentence patterns and the transformations of these patterns.

In addition to regular English classes, seventh grade students take Developmental Reading which helps them with their reading speed and comprehension.

In the eighth grade, students study Developmental Language. In this class students give speeches and write poems and stories.

Ninth graders study the new English and read novels and the Odyssey.

Mr. Urban Steckler's first period Spanish class watches as he explains a Spanish poster advertising bullfighting. Looking on are Marcia Geyer, Nancy Siples, Geoffrey Silverman, Jane Adams, and Thomas Carroll.

Deborah Allen recites a core dialogue while Jeff Salon runs the tape recorder during Mrs. Ann Gargett's fifth period French class.

Audio-visual Approach Simplifies Languages

During Mrs. Virginia Loveland's Latin class students dress as Roman citizens. Steve Weitzman and Kurt Snouffer portray slaves greeting a victorious general while Lenore Sudhop looks on.

The students in the ninth grade shop class work on various projects while Mr. Frank Goldman assists Robert Petrie.

Cathy Dusing and Marcy Cole, students in Mrs. Linda Staggs' home-making class, work together to prepare a nutritious meal.

Science Classes Explore Surrounding World

James Tritch demonstrates the use of the Punnett square for Mr. Michael Fulk and his biology students, Michael Henry, Susan Wickman, and Ann Johnson.

Cheryl Fiedler, Richard Smith, and Martin Worthman observe Mrs. Jane Griggs' explanation of nature's deadlines.

Students from Miss Beverly Moore's health class examine the interior of the human body on the model.

Students study the sciences to learn about themselves and their environment. Biology students study such things as cells, the chemical basis of life, and genetics. This year the classes determined their own blood types and dissected a variety of invertebrates.

Seventh and eighth grade students take a general science and health class. Seventh graders take science for one semester and study good health habits and work on scientific experiments. Eighth graders have two semesters of science and spend time studying machines and health problems in the United States.

All ninth grade students take a health and safety class for the equivalent of one semester. This course prepares the students for driver education in high school.

Miss Virginia Danuser assists Kurt Snouffer, Cynthia Scholl, Karen Rose, and Cynthia Augsburg with their algebraic story problems.

Harrison Hill students study mathematics in the seventh, eighth, and ninth grades. In the ninth grade, students take either algebra or general math. In these classes students study equations, story problems, and factoring. They also have a preview of geometry and trigonometry.

Eighth grade mathematics instructors teach their students the basics for high school subjects. Students learn about lines and angles in a geometry unit and about equations in algebra.

Seventh grade math classes learn how to use their protractors and compasses in making geometrical figures. They also use their knowledge of equations in working story problems.

Modern Mathematics Presents New Theories

Mr. Dallas Gisler helps Marcy Cole with a problem in his ninth grade general math class.

Miss Ruth Whittern's seventh grade math class demonstrates designs and instruments. The demonstrators are Stuart Berk, Ann Campati, and Geary Menze.

Mr. Anthony Scatena, II, leads his class in a discussion on the election for president of the United States. He also sponsored a mock election so that students could show their political views.

Tomorrow's Citizens Learn of Yesterday's World

Students study social studies in the seventh and eighth grades and may elect a social studies class in the ninth grade.

In the seventh grade students study world geography. In this class students learn about many different countries. They study the resources of the country, the government, the climate, and the people. The geography classes also spend one quarter on Indiana history.

Eighth grade students study the history of the United States. They begin their study with pre-colonial times and continue to the present. There is also an emphasis on how past events have affected events in the present.

Ninth grade students may elect to take a citizenship class. Students in this class discuss the government and its problems, the generation gap, and problems related to Harrison Hill. This year, besides sponsoring a mock election, the class wrote a letter to President Johnson.

Joseph Dahman, Elizabeth Hunter, and Thomas Toy examine a few of the many history projects in Miss Freda Withers room.

Students in Mr. Hugh Howenstine's eighth grade history class study their Current Events paper which they receive weekly.

STUDENTS

Homeward bound students carry a heavy load of books after a day of studying at school. School activities play a major role in the lives of students for many years. Soon they will prepare for tomorrow's day of study, but in reality they are preparing for the future years of their lives.

ACTIVITIES

Seventh period clubs offer a wide variety of activities for all students. In these organizations students are able to express their ideas through plays, speeches, singing and sports.

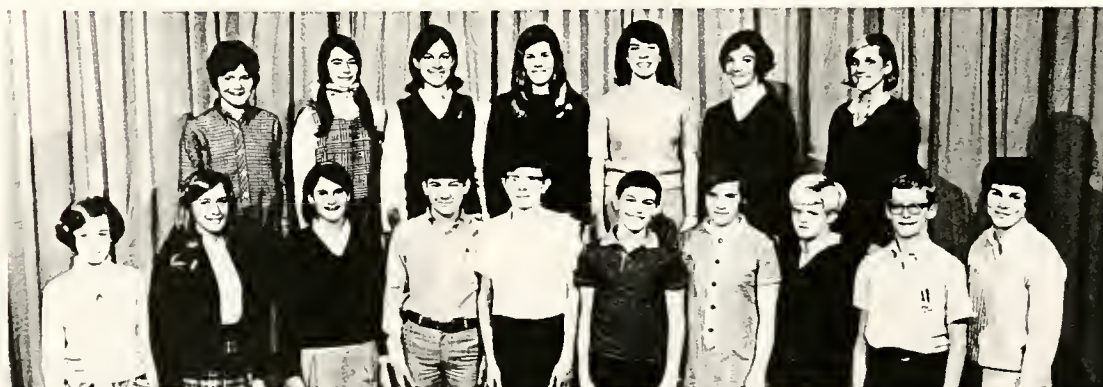

Vista Staff Begins Year Under New Direction

The members of the Vista staff work hard to plan the 1969 Vista. Nancy O'Neal, editor, and Barbara Buck, assistant editor, lead the staff in their activities.

Nancy O'Neal, editor, and Barbara Buck, assistant editor, crop pictures and make page plans for this year's Vista.

These students, with the help of Mrs. Linda Staggs and Miss Mary Catherine Hahn, sold about 500 Vistas to the students and faculty.

The Beacon staff, advised by Mrs. Linda Staggs, publishes the monthly newspaper, which is distributed to all students. The editor is Jane Adams; assistant editor, John Brooks; feature editor, Janet Poitras; copy editor, Patricia Bennett; and sports editor, George Lampe.

Beacon Staff Publishes Monthly Newspaper

The members of the Beacon staff work to prepare a monthly newspaper. Students on the staff attempt to collect interesting materials for news articles. Then stories are written and copyread. The stories are then sent to the School Press for printing. The next step is for the students to read proofs and arrange the layout of the paper. Then the finished paper is given to students.

The Vista staff is composed of seventh, eighth, and ninth graders who work together to prepare the yearbook for publication. The students write cutlines, copy, and headlines for the book. They also must collect pictures and organize the pages of the book.

The Vista salesmen are students chosen by their respective homeroom teachers to take charge of selling Vistas. These students must sell Vistas, make out receipts, and make daily reports of their work. These people provide valuable assistance to the Vista staff.

Several members of the Beacon staff copyread stories for errors before the stories are sent to be printed.

Advised by Mr. Glenn Mulligan, Student Council is headed by Scott Senseny, vice-president; Greg Kettler, president; and Julia Keirns, secretary.

Council Represents Students in School Affairs

Betsy Rubino brings a suggestion from her homeroom to the Student Council for discussion by the members.

Members of the Student Council are elected by their homerooms at the beginning of each year. These students attempt to represent the feelings of all students in their discussions. The Student Council representative from each homeroom takes suggestions from their homeroom to the Council. The Council members discuss student suggestions and current problems.

The Student Council sponsors such projects as dances and assembly programs. This year the Council led the school in finding and writing a new pep song.

During the summer months, the members keep the school yard neat by trimming bushes and picking up papers.

The Student Council members bring student suggestions to members of the faculty and in this way help to bring about changes in Harrison Hill.

The Service Club, sponsored by Mrs. Virginia Loveland, aids teachers in both the elementary and junior high schools. These students help teachers after school by grading and filing papers, creating bulletin boards, and doing various other tasks.

Service, Library Clubs Aid Students, Faculty

Students in the Service Club volunteer their help to the teachers. These girls work after school at least one afternoon per week. The girls receive points for the number of hours that they work. At the end of the year these points are totaled and the service workers with the highest number of points receive an award.

The girls who are members of the Library Club give up their study halls to help with tasks in the library. These girls help with filing tasks, typing, and shelving of books. They also help students find needed materials and check out books for them.

The students in both the Service and the Library Clubs give their time to help the school run more efficiently.

Mrs. Harriet Dellinger and Mrs. Shirley Votaw sponsor the Library Club. These ninth grade girls help with work in the library. The girls are Cathy Dicker, Jane Geyer, Mary Harber, Lenore Sudhop, Susan Wickman, Ann Johnson, and Kris Towns.

The Junto Club, sponsored by Mr. Donald Reynolds, is headed by Kathleen Black, president; John Billingsly, vice-president; and Susan Slater, secretary.

H.H. and Junto Clubs Promote School Spirit

The Junto Club discusses current events and world problems. They also discuss the problems of teenagers and the generation gap. This year the club sponsored a dance and donated the proceeds to the Christmas Bureau. The club also sponsored a canned goods drive and collected almost 2400 cans. These cans were also given to the Christmas Bureau.

The H.H. Club helps to create and stimulate school spirit at Harrison Hill. The club sponsors the cheerblock which is held every Thursday morning during basketball season.

Students in the club sell candy before home basketball games. The club also sponsors a Valentine dance for all students.

The H.H. Club helps to promote school spirit. The officers are Kurt Snouffer (not pictured), Lisa Gilliland, Eric Bergendahl, Krista Schloss, Mark Brown, and Larry Azar. The sponsor of the club is Mr. Anthony Scatena, II.

Dramatics Clubs Encourage Ease in Speaking

Junior Wranglers, advised by Mrs. Ann Gargett, prepare speeches and plays during the year. The officers are George Lampe, Kristine Kleifgen, Patrice Meyers, and Constance Bartkiewicz.

Mr. Urban Steckler, sponsor of the eighth grade Dramatics Club, coaches and directs students in the production of plays and skits.

The sponsor of the seventh grade Dramatics Club is Mr. Michael Fulk. The officers of the club are Patricia Spears, Julia Kierns, and Barbara Kimbrough.

Band, Orchestra Increase Musical Interest

Mr. Lowell Moennig is the director of the Concert Band. They play for various musical programs throughout the year, including the Winter and Spring Concerts.

The Concert Orchestra is under the supervision of Mrs. Judith Schwartz. These students study and play different types of music.

The Cadet Band plays music under the direction of Mr. Lowell Moennig. This band plays and studies music to prepare to play in Concert Band.

Miss Audrey Hochstetler, sponsor of the Training Choir, helps these students to prepare to sing in the Concert Choir.

The music department at Harrison Hill is headed by Miss Audrey Hochstetler, Mr. Lowell Moennig, and Mrs. Judith Schwartz. The bands, orchestra, and choirs each year present a Winter and Spring concert for the student body and parents.

Goals of the department include teaching students to read music, and to use their voices and play instruments. The students are also expected to develop an appreciation for music.

The Pep Band was organized to play at home basketball games to help encourage school spirit. The Pep Band is made up of the students who hold the top chairs in Concert Band.

The Triple Trio is directed by Miss Audrey Hochstetler and is composed of ninth grade girls.

Choirs Perform Before Parents, Student Body

The Concert Choir, led by Miss Audrey Hochstetler, is made up of eighth and ninth grade students who rehearse every other day.

Shop, Heritage, Art Clubs Extend Required Studies

Thomas Penny asks Kenneth Drake a question concerning his tool box while Mr. Frank Goldman and the members of the Industrial Arts and Design Club look on. The club helps the boys to further their industrial arts skills.

The Heritage Club, sponsored by Miss Freda Withers, was formed to promote an understanding of U.S. and world history.

Mr. Frank Roberts' Art Club allows students who do not have an art class in their curriculum to be able to work on various art projects.

Chess, Typing Develop Powers of Concentration

Students in the Chess Club learn the technique and challenge of playing chess. Every week students learn how to improve their game and to make moves that suit the game's situation. A tournament is held at the end of each semester to promote sportsmanship and skill.

Students in Mrs. Jeannette Smith's and Mr. Hugh Howenstine's typing clubs learn an extremely useful skill. The students learn to type by the touch system. During the year the students attempt to improve their speed and accuracy.

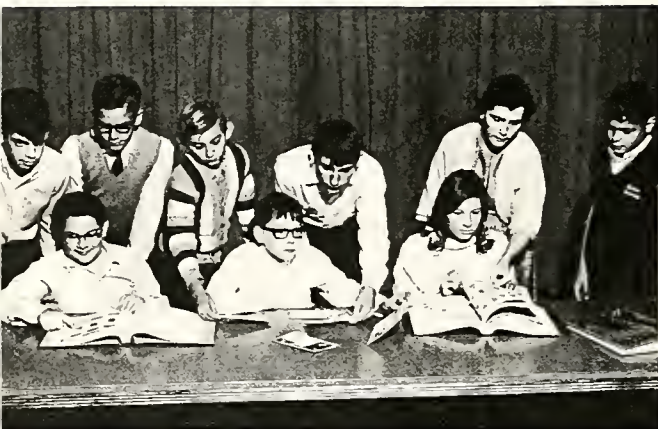

Miss Ruth Whittern's Chess Club meets every week to learn to play the game properly. Joel Bromley studies his next move as the club watches.

Mr. Hugh Howenstine's Typing Club helps teach students the valuable typing skills.

Another Typing Club is sponsored by Mrs. Jeannette Smith. The students pose in front of the typing keyboard which aids them in their learning.

The Stamp Club meets to discuss recently issued stamps and to trade past issues. The club meets every Friday under the supervision of Miss Mary Catherine Hahn.

Bruce Clarke of the winning team, the Coke Machines, prepares to send his ball down the alley.

Stamp Club Begun, Bowling Club Strikes Again

Bowling and Stamp Club are two of the activities offered which can be continued after junior high school.

The Bowling Club strives to achieve accuracy in bowling and awards trophies to each member of the year's top team.

The Stamp Club is a new club which was organized this year. The philatelists send for and service their own first day covers. They also vote on the design of certain stamps. The hobby of philately can be interesting and challenging.

The Bowling Club, sponsored by Miss Virginia Danuser, meets every Wednesday at Hillcrest Lanes. Records for the league are kept by Diane Dumas and Jane Geyer.

Mr. Ronald Fecher's Athletic Training Club teaches boys to assist in handling minor athletic injuries and emergency situations. Demonstrating is Kenneth Day, a seventh grade member of the club.

New Clubs Capture Interests of Students

The Athletic Training Club is new to Harrison Hill this year. The purpose of this club is to teach students to handle minor injuries which may occur during the football, basketball, or track seasons. They learn how to care for cuts and bruises, sprained ankles, pulled muscles, and other injuries resulting from athletic contests.

The Science Assistance Club helps teach students the fundamentals of doing an experiment. This year the students have experimented with such things as making oxygen, making distilled water, and developing photographs. This club also assists the science teachers by keeping the classrooms in good condition for experiments and dissections.

The Science Assistance Club, under the supervision of Mr. Ralph Ringgenberg, helps science teachers with projects and learns how to conduct their own experiments.

Girls in the ninth grade G.A.A., sponsored by Miss Beverly Moore, participate in many athletic activities. The girls also compete with girls from other schools. The officers of the group are Shelley Sery, secretary; Nancy Wright, president; and Barbara Buck, vice-president.

Sports Competition Popular Among Girls

The eighth grade G.A.A., sponsored by Miss Shirley Nicholas, is a club which gives the girls the opportunity to develop sportsmanship and leadership. The officers are Barbara Young, Lisa Gilliland, and Margaret Howard.

Miss Shirley Nicholas leads the seventh grade G.A.A. in their activities. The president of the group is Nancy Smalley; vice-president is Cynthia Whiting; and the office of secretary is held by Sally Hale.

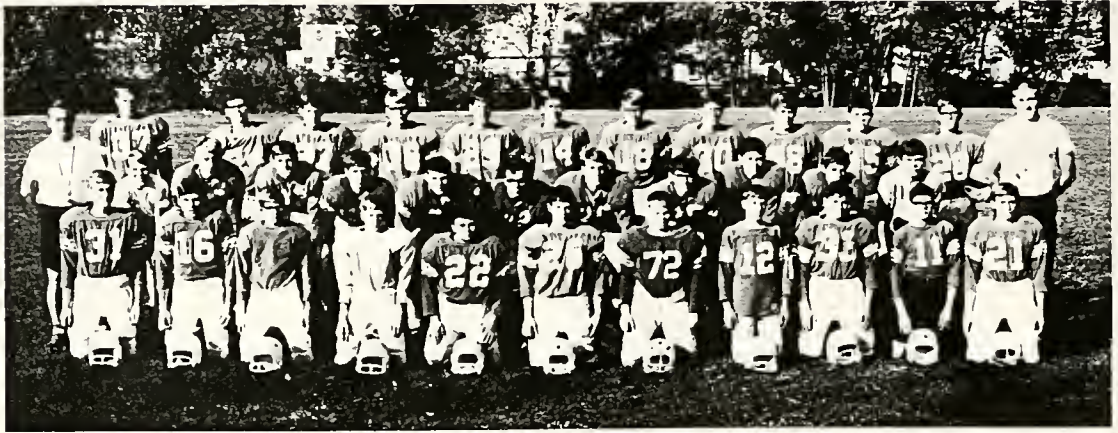

SPORTS

Sports are offered to all boys as extra-curricular activities. They may choose to be on the football, basketball, track, or roller hockey teams. Students are able to express their enthusiasm and school spirit by attending games and other sports events.

Hawk Teams Fight Hard for Football Victories

Coach Edward Innis and assistant coach Frank Hole led the varsity squad to a record of two wins and four losses. The team played hard, but was unable to pull out a winning season.

This year both the varsity and reserve football teams made a respectable showing. The varsity had a two win and four loss record. However, they lost several close games. The reserve squad earned a four win, two loss record, as they proved to be one of the stronger city teams.

The eighth grade team, coached by Mr. Edward Innis, started the season on a losing note, but they made much improvement as the season progressed.

Seventh Graders Enter Athletic Competition

The seventh grade team, coached by Mr. Donald Reynolds, won two of their three contests this year. With a year's experience behind them, the team should be well-prepared for next year.

Through their participation in seventh grade sports, boys gain the experience needed to join reserve and varsity teams in future years. They advance in teamwork and sportsmanship while improving their skill as basketball and football players.

The seventh grade basketball team gained valuable experience during the six games they played during the season. Mr. Ronald Fecher coached the team.

Cheerleaders Provide Examples of Leadership

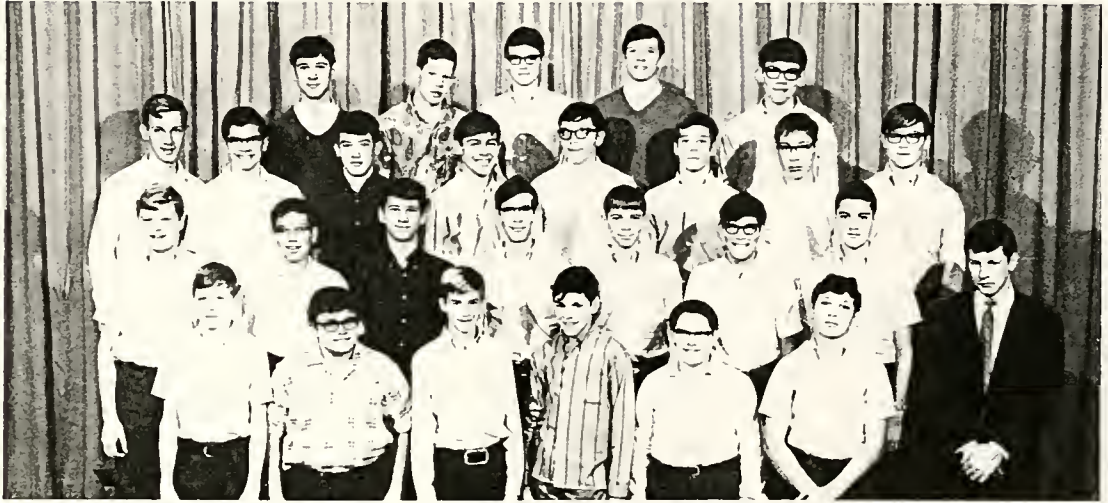

These girls, with their pep and enthusiasm, help to add a great deal of spirit to varsity football and basketball games. The girls are Linda Nelson, Nancy Wright, Kathleen Johnston, Deborah Tudor, Kris Towns, and Joan Purdy.

The reserve cheerleaders help to encourage school spirit at eighth grade games. The girls are Katherine Schmidt, Patricia Spears, Karen Wickman, Susan Smalley, Connie Crewdson, and Cathryn Hess.

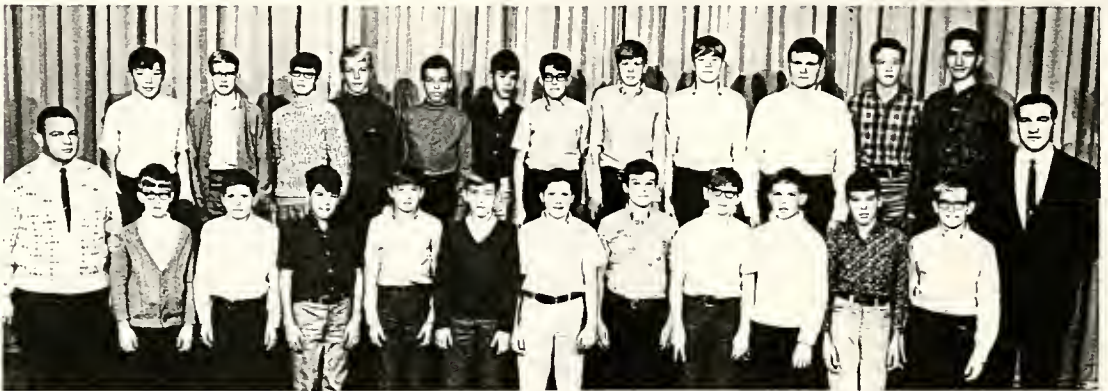

The Officials Club learns the correct way to officiate athletic contests. Barbara Hines, Susan Wickman, and Ann Johnson demonstrate the proper way to hold a face-off in soccer.

Intramurals Teach Boys Sports Appreciation

Boys in Mr. Ronald Fecher's intramurals play football, basketball, volleyball, and other major sports.

Seventh and eighth grade boys have an opportunity to participate in various sports through intramurals. Mr. Edward Innis and Mr. Franklin Hole sponsor the group.

Seventh and eighth graders play fast-paced Roller Hockey. This sport is played in the mornings before school and is sponsored by Mr. Anthony Scatena and Mr. Frank Roberts.

Hawks Gain Respect in Various Sports

City cross-country record holder, John Brooks, is congratulated after winning the meet.

Mark Brown gains yardage in a close game before being gang-tackled.

The track team jogs a few warm-up laps before a grueling day at practice.

Varsity players, Steve Loggins, Steve Sprunger, and Dave Lohman anxiously await results as a Fairfield player shoots for a basket.

Harrison Hill closes its doors for the summer, but students' preparation for the future continues. Students participate in a variety of summer sports which help develop a strong body and good health; for not only is a sound mind important but also a sound body and proper health. However, the time will pass quickly and soon the doors will open again.
